

Grant Recipient

Dr. Justin Pope
Assistant Professor of History
Department of History and Political Science

Activities

- ❖ I presented a paper to the 50th Annual Conference of the Association of Caribbean Historians (ACH) entitled ““How Rumors of Slave Rebellion United the Black Diaspora, 1725 to 1745.”
- ❖ The presentation gave me the rare opportunity to share my research with Caribbean archaeologists and historians from around the world.

Proposal

- ❖ June 10-15th, 2018
- ❖ The Professional Development Fund of $1000 paid for lodging (5 nights at $190/night = $950) and part of the per diem for meals (OCONUS rate of $139/day).
- ❖ The 50th Anniversary ACH Conference was a rare meeting of scholars focused on Caribbean History.

Outcomes

- ❖ My conference paper introduced findings from my upcoming book Dangerous Spirit of Liberty (Cambridge University Press) to this rare gathering of specialists. The paper also attracted the interest of editors from several academic presses.
- ❖ Because of this conference, I plan to publish both a new article and a book with two academic presses. I was also invited to join a panel at a future international conference.
